Italy Bombards Allied Naval Bases, Flying Fields

Broadcast Says Turin Destroyed

British Tanks Attacking in Libya; Report Is That Fighting in Africa Is Violent

Rome, June 17 (AP)—Italy, still active principally in the air in her first week of warfare, said today in a headquarters communiqué that her aerial raiders had bombarded allied naval bases and flying fields yesterday in Malta, Corsica and Tunisia.

Reconnaissance activity continued in the Alps along the Franco-Italian borders, and in North Africa there were clashes of Italian and British troops.

In British raids, the communiqué said, a civilian was killed at Savona and several others were wounded, and at Cagliari six aviation technicians were killed and 30 wounded in an attack on an airfield.

The British, using tanks, attacked Italian outposts in Libya. In the Mediterranean Sea and in the air, the Italians declared their forces destroyed 40 French and two British planes and an allied submarine, and announced that anti-aircraft batteries brought down four other allied planes during air raids on Genoa the night of June 15-16.

The government said that one woman was killed and eight persons were injured in the Genoa raids.

(A French broadcast intercepted Monday morning by NBC asserted that French warplanes had raided Tunis and destroyed its entire industrial center.)

Violent Fighting
The Sunday Italian communiqué said operations in Northern Africa were "violent" as the British "attempted an attack in the direction of Sidi Azeiz."

Other week-end activities were summarized by the government as follows:

Seventy Italian bombers attacked air bases in southern France, destroying 40 French planes, blowing up a munitions depot and setting several fires.

French Corsica and British Malta also were attacked by air. In East Africa, Italian fighters bombed air bases of Berbera, British Somaliland, and Mandera, Tanganyika.

Two British planes were reported shot down at Massaua, Eritrea. (An Egyptian said the Italians raided the Egyptian frontier post of Salum, and the coastal town of Sidi Barrani, causing 30 casualties. British bombers set fire to Italian airbase buildings at Diredawa, Ethiopia, and struck airbase buildings also at Maccaca, the R.A.F. middle east command said.

A Rome radio broadcast reported that Albania's Parliament adopted a bill entering that Italian dependency into the war on the side of Italy.

U. S. Aid Minimized
Fascists generally said they considered that the "material aid" from the United States promised by President Roosevelt was unlikely to reach the allies in time.

Giovanni Alesandro, editor of Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, newspaper of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, said in his weekly broadcast to the Italian armed forces that for American aid to be effective, "it would be necessary that Germans and Italians should be so amiable as to wait."

"But the Germans and Italians are not so amiable. In these circumstances it is difficult to see how statesmen who have the misfortune to try to direct the (allied) destinies... can delude themselves into believing further resistance is possible."

The newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma said President Roosevelt's reply to Paul Reynaud's plea for aid for France was "typically American" in urging France "to continue the war without assuming any responsibility in the not improbable case that France succumbs after useless, bloody resistance."

Summitville Woman Killed in Auto Crash On Shawangunk Trail

Four Persons Are Hurt on Sunday Evening; Ellenville Man Has Severe Injuries

Mrs. Julia Conklin Crawford, 34, of Summitville, Sullivan county, was killed instantly Sunday evening on the Shawangunk Trail about four miles east of Ellenville when the Chevrolet car in which she was an occupant and a Buick sedan owned by the Rev. Edward C. Nilan of 78 North Main street, Ellenville, and operated by Woodrow Wilson Smith, 21, of 176 Canal street, Ellenville, collided.

Smith is in a critical condition at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital, Ellenville, suffering severe internal injuries. Three other occupants of the Chevrolet car are also at the hospital with severe injuries.

Benjamin Crawford, Summitville, owner and operator of the Chevrolet car which was proceeding toward Ellenville at the time of the crash, Miss Harriet Palmer of Cragmoor and Miss Lillian Crawford, 17, Summitville, were all taken to the hospital after the accident with serious injuries.

Three Boys Hurt
Three Ellenville boys who were riding with Smith were injured but after being treated at the hospital were discharged. They are Joseph Gash, 51 Canal street, George Bigford of 8 Center street, and Walter Ignatik of 40 Canal street.

The accident happened at the top of the hill on route 52 about 7 o'clock at a point where the first "look-out" west of the summit breaks out. The Chevrolet car which was proceeding toward Ellenville was struck on the right side and came to rest against the wooden guard rail.

State Troopers William Reynolds and Walter Obuhanchik were notified of the accident and went to the scene where they made a partial investigation but were to resume their investigation today. It was intimated that a charge of criminal negligence might be issued. Troopers John Metzger and L. Baker of the B.C.N. were also (Continued on Page Two)

Red Troops Enter Estonia and Latvia; Ask New Leaders

Russians Prepare to Fix Nation's Position, Says Official News Agency; War Move Is Seen

Moscow, June 17 (AP)—Soviet Russian troops marched into unresisting Estonia and Latvia today, climaxing a series of swift moves which consolidated Russia's position in the Baltic.

News that the Red army was on the march was disclosed by the Russian radio only a few hours after the two countries had yielded to Soviet demands that they permit unimpeded passage of troops and reorganize their governments. Lithuania capitulated to similar demands Saturday, and Russian troops already are occupying strategic points there.

Tass, official news agency, announced the agreement of Estonia and Latvia to the Russian demands which, Tass said, were motivated by a need for "honest and conscientious observance" of mutual assistance pacts with the two Baltic states.

The Soviet asked new governments "capable and willing to insure honest implementation" of the pacts; and free passage of troops to "forestall possible provocative actions against Soviet garrisons" (Continued on Page Three)

British Will Buy French Supplies

Reliable Sources Declare Britain Will Buy as Much as Can Be Made

New York, June 17 (AP)—Reliable Wall Street sources today disclosed that the British government intends to "take over" all war supplies contracted for in this country by France "and to buy as much more here as the United States can produce."

These same sources said sellers of war supplies were inclined to take "at its face value" Prime Minister Churchill's statement that Great Britain would carry on the war.

Something more than $1,600,000 worth of war supplies—mainly airplanes—are known to have been ordered by the British-French purchasing commission in the United States up to last Friday when the French, according to official announcement, placed "many millions" of additional orders.

The financial district understands more than 6,000 airplanes ordered in the United States by the French and British still are undelivered of original orders for more than 8,000. These, it was assumed, now will be diverted to Great Britain.

Lineman Is Hurt In Fall From Pole On Hurley Avenue

Central Hudson Employee Is Thrown to Pavement as Pole Gives Way During Removal

Ben Pine, lineman employed by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., suffered a severe injury to his leg and also shock about 11 o'clock this morning when a pole on which he was working fell carrying Pine to the cement pavement of the driveway of the Joseph Hughes premises at 54 Hurley avenue.

With a crew Mr. Pine was engaged in removing an old line of poles running from the Fair Grounds to Hurley avenue in the vicinity of Taylor street. He had gone up the pole and fastened his safety belt and was engaged in cutting a guy wire.

Apparently the pole had rotted off at the base and when the guy wire was cut, the pole fell carrying Mr. Pine with it. He was unable to loosen his safety belt and is believed to have suffered severe shock when the pole struck the pavement and bounded up, striking Mr. Pine.

The emergency truck of the Central Hudson was summoned and conveyed Mr. Pine to the Kingston Hospital. It was stated that the extent of his injuries would not be known until X-rays had been taken.

Two Planes Set Fire to Houses, Woman Is Burned; Bodies Are Mangled

(By The Associated Press)
New York, June 17—Twelve army men died today when two twin-motored Douglas bombing planes collided in mid-air and plummeted about 2,500 feet into a thickly populated residential section just within the New York city limits. There were no survivors.

Ten victims were members of the army air reserve corps, called for further training to Mitchell Field on Long Island from Kelly Field, Texas.

Another victim was a regular army officer, Lieut. Paul Burlingame of Louisville, Ky., a graduate of West Point, where he was a football star as a cadet. He was in command of one of the ships.

The mid-air collision, probably the worst in the history of Mitchell Field, army flying station, occurred while four planes were flying in practice V-formation only a few minutes after the takeoff. (Continued on Page 10)

Pittman Calls Upon Lindbergh to Stop Stirring Up Unfounded War Fears and Sense of Defeatism

Washington, June 17 (AP)—Replying to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's demand that the United States stop making "gestures with an empty gun," Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) has proposed that the flier "cease efforts to create unfounded war fear and lack of confidence in our government."

Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said in a radio speech Sunday night: "If Colonel Lindbergh desires to help in our national defense, let him throw aside all of his false political advisers, and volunteer in the United States government as an expert in aviation."

Pittman's speech followed a broadcast Saturday night in which Lindbergh declared: "This dabbling we have been doing in European affairs can lead us only to failure in the future as it has in the past. x x x We demand that foreign nations refrain from interfering in our hemisphere, yet we constantly interfere in theirs. x x x We have been doing to England and France what they did to Abyssinia, to Czechoslovakia, to Poland, to Finland, to Norway—we have encouraged them to hope for help we cannot send."

To this, Pittman replied: "Colonel Lindbergh evidently desires and intends to stop the purchase of materials in this country by Great Britain and France. x x x It is significant that when the United States had its markets open to Germany for all the materials, arms, and instruments of war that have built up Hitler's brutal machine, there was no such argument from Colonel Lindbergh."

Lindbergh contended that it was "useless to talk of sending American troops to Europe now, for we would need months of preparations before we could train and equip even a small army."

Pittman said: "The United States has no desire to conquer Germany. We simply intend to prevent Hitler from con-

Big Boost Of Billion Requested

Chairman of Committee Says World Affairs Make Action One of Great Need

Washington, June 17 (AP)—A new $1,200,000,000 expansion of the navy to provide for 84 additional warships was proposed in an administration-approved bill today by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House naval committee.

Vinson said that he and Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the Senate naval committee would introduce identical bills today providing for this big boost in the navy amounting to a 22 per cent increase in the fleet's present authorized strength of 1,700,000 tons.

"World conditions make it absolutely imperative that the navy be built up as rapidly as possible," Vinson told reporters.

Vinson spoke just after President Roosevelt had signed into law two previous bills authorizing a naval air force of 10,000 planes and 16,000 pilots and increasing the fleet by 21 new warships, and 22 auxiliary naval vessels.

Specific sums are provided in the signed aviation expansion bill for 21 air bases. It also permits spending of $20,000,000 for building and improving reserve and auxiliary bases.

Henderson Expects Nazi Invasion Soon

Lincoln, England, June 17 (AP)—Sir Neville Henderson told a meeting here today that he expects Adolf Hitler to attempt the invasion of England this month or July rather than wait until August or September.

Sir Neville, Britain's ambassador to Germany, urged every able bodied man and boy to learn to use a rifle. "Hitler," he said, "can only defeat the British by starving us through a blockade, by bombing us into submission or by successfully invading our country. I think he will try all three."

"We cannot any longer carry on on amateur lines. We are not going to beat Germany unless we turn professional."

France Is 9th Victim Of Germans

Premier-Marshall Petain Asks Armistice and Broadcasts Talk About Decision

Berlin Is Blunt

Official Sources Say Separate Peace With French Impossible

By the Associated Press
French troops still fought fiercely today hours after Premier Petain broadcast an announcement that he had asked Germany for an armistice—the ninth nation to succumb to Hitler's conquering armies in two years.

Renewed French resistance was reported in a battle on the plain behind Pontarlier, near the Swiss border.

Large numbers of German motorized troops, roaring south to join the Italian armies and complete the encirclement of tiny Switzerland, found their path blocked by hard-fighting French infantry.

In a voice shaken with emotion, Premier Petain, 84-year-old World War "hero of Verdun" and the man who gave France her watchword "they shall not pass!" heralded French capitulation with the declaration:

"It is necessary to try to end the fighting."

Petain announced France's readiness to lay down her arms in a broadcast from Bordeaux.

"I made contact with the adversary last night, asking him as soldier to soldier to seek with me the means to stop the fight," he said.

Even without knowledge of whether the powerful French fleet, second biggest in Europe, would be involved in the projected French surrender, Britain voiced a grim determination to "fight on to the end."

Authorized Nazis in Berlin said bluntly:

"No separate armistice with France is imaginable, except in terms of complete capitulation."

The Berlin radio broadcast an official announcement that Marshal Petain "has proclaimed France's capitulation."

It said Hitler would meet Premier Mussolini of Italy shortly to discuss the situation.

Two hours before Petain spoke, an official French army communiqué said fighting was continuing.

Loss of the French fleet would mean a serious blow to Britain's hopes of ultimately forcing Germany to her knees through blockade.

Likely Intermediary

Edmond Taylor, a Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent, speaking from the same studio in Bordeaux where Premier Petain spoke, declared:

"The French intermediary is expected to be the ambassador of Spain. What the German terms will be, if they will give terms, none of us knows as yet."

Taylor added that German troops at that moment were understood to be "not very far away from the place which the French radio is now operating."

"When and if the Germans will arrive in Bordeaux, the present capital of France, none of us know at the present moment."

Bordeaux is in the far southwestern region of France near the Bay of Biscay.

Maginot Line Abandoned
The capitulation came as France's great Maginot Line—built at a cost of $500,000,000 and supposedly impregnable—was abandoned except for a skeleton defense force and Germany's armored legions smashed through and around the vast steel-and-concrete system of fortifications.

Reports from London said the British reaction to the French collapse was a grim determination to fight on—as already vowed by Prime Minister Churchill—even if England itself falls to the Nazi invaders.

With onrushing German armies already having cut off France's "lost provinces" of Alsace and Lorraine by thundering down to the Swiss border at Pontarlier—while other Nazi columns report— (Continued on Page Two)

Entrott Funeral Largely Attended

Burial was made in St. Mary's Cemetery where the Rev. Benjamin J. Roth pronounced the final absolution at the grave after a delegation from the Joyce-Schrick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Kingston Post of the American Legion, had filed a volley over the grave and bugler Frank M. Sass had sounded taps.

The members of the Joyce-Schrick Post who acted with the members of Kingston Post as a guard of honor and a firing squad, were: Alvin Singer, George Plant, Charles V. Skane, Joseph Perry and John L. Green. The members of Kingston Post were John Hartley, Leo Pold, William H. Sills and Albert Melville.

The bearers were members of the Kingston police department and were Lieutenant James V. Simpson, Sergeant Raymond Van Buren, Sergeant William T. Egan, and Officers James J. Burns, Clarence Brophy, Wesley Cramer, Peter Keresman and William J. Leonard.

Saturday evening the members of the Joyce-Schrick Post called at the home and held ritual services, while on Sunday evening ritualistic services were held at the late home by Kingston Post of the American Legion, and the Kingston Lodge of Elks, Company M, 51st Pioneers, also held ritualistic services at the late home that evening, while the Rev. Benjamin Roth of St. Mary's Church called at the late home Sunday evening and recited the rosary.

The former policeman was a veteran of the World War serving overseas as a corporal of Company M of the 51st Pioneers Infantry, and at the close of the war, he became a member of the Kingston police department, serving for nearly 20 years before he retired several months ago on a pension.

Private funeral services will be held in Rosendale Plains where a Russian Mass will be offered by the Rev. Vassily Kurdimoff of the Russian Church of Christ the Savior in New York city, while a funeral service will be held at the grave in the Rosendale Plains Cemetery will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Mr. Mikhalenkoff is survived by his wife, the former Miss Isabel Alliger of this city, who is a sister of Mrs. J. Allan Wood of Kingston. There are no other known survivors as Mr. Mikhalenkoff always believed that his relatives in Russia had been slain by the revolutionists.

Mr. Mikhalenkoff, who traveled with the Cossack Choir for seven years, had received decorations from the late King George V of England, the late King Marie of Rumania, and the late King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

During the World War he served as a lieutenant in a Cossack regiment and his knowledge of several languages won him a post as liaison officer with the French and English missions.

A Cossack by birth, Mr. Mikhalenkoff was born in the Province of the Don, the son of a Russian priest. He fled from Russia after the revolution and went to France to study for the diplomatic service in the University of Paris.

While in that city he was active in the work of the Cossack Refugee Student Fund, serving as a member of the executive committee. When the Cossack Choir went to Paris for a concert he tried out for a singing part and led the same week for a tour which eventually included 2,000 concerts. He served also as business manager and secretary for the choir.

He left the choir to join the Brooklyn Music School Settlement as assistant director in 1937. The following year he became its director. He also had done free lance journalism in New York city and in Paris. A warm admirer of this country, Mr. Mikhalenkoff had visited the United States in 1930 and made six visits thereafter. He took out his citizenship papers at the first opportunity.

During the time that Mr. Mikhalenkoff supervised the work of the Brooklyn Music School Settlement, the enrollment of the school increased despite unsettled conditions.

In his last report he stated that there was an average of 410 individual students, 215 group students, and 2,275 monthly lessons. He noted that the settlement, by economies, had become 72 per cent self-supporting, although it had been only 48 per cent self-supporting previously.

A delegation of the Don Cossack Choir will attend the funeral services in Rosendale Plains. The body is now at the funeral parlors of A. Carr & Son on Pearl street.

cent expansion in addition to the 11 per cent expansion approved to-day by the House, contemplated the following:

Aircraft carriers, 79,500 tons, approximately three ships.

Cruisers 198,000 tons, approximately 12 ships.

Destroyers 80,100 tons, approximately 41 ships.

Submarines 42,000 tons, approximately 28 ships.

Total tonnage 379,600, approximately 84 ships.

Vinson asserted that $80,000,000 would be required during the fiscal year beginning July 1 to commence this additional program.

With this, he said, the Navy would have 244 ships under construction during the coming fiscal year. All are to be completed by 1944.

The proposal for a huge new program, proposed for the administration intention to build a separate Atlantic fleet, Vinson, however, talked only of numbers and tonnage.

Vinson announced that hearings on his measure would begin tomorrow with high naval officers as witnesses. He predicted the hearings could be conducted in one day and the measure presented to the House Wednesday.

He said there was "no reason" that Congress could not complete action on the legislation by the end of the week.

He added, however, that Congress "must" pass the legislation before it adjourns.

France Capitulates But Battle Rages

edly captured Orleans on the river Loire, where Joan of Arc won her great victory—the new French cabinet met at Bordeaux to "await developments" on France's capitulation offer.

The German high command reported its troops "relentlessly pursuing" the retreating French armies, had crossed the Loire river.

"It Is Necessary"

Bordeaux June 17 (AP)—Premier announced over the radio today that "it is necessary to try to end the fighting."

"I made contact with the adversary last night, asking him to soldier to soldier to seek with me the means to stop the fight," the 84-year-old hero of the last World War said.

Pétain, whose indomitable defense of Verdun 24 years ago gave France her watchword, "They shall not pass," made his momentous announcement that France was seeking an armistice after a meeting of the new cabinet he formed last night in the republic's darkest hour.

The cabinet convened to "wait developments." There still was no announcement of any German reply to Pétain's request for an armistice.

The aged marshal-premier said that France had entered into contact with Germany through the intermediation of Spain.

The premier made his radio address at 12:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EST) after a series of dramatic conferences during the military reverses and the future were discussed.

His announcement of the overtures was no surprise, the formation of his new cabinet generally was accepted, and he was asked to request for an armistice.

Succeeded Reynaud

He succeeded Pétain and Reynaud's cabinet had spent a day in long discussions, bearing largely on the United States offer of help for the Allies.

So far as was known, fighting was still going on. A morning communiqué by the French high command had said battle was raging "in the region of Laigle and Chateaudun, as well as on the line of the Loire and south of Avallon."

The Berlin radio announced that Pétain "has proclaimed France's capitulation," and that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini of Italy would meet to discuss the situation.

(Authorized Berlin sources said that "no separate armistice with France is imaginable except in terms of complete capitulation. These sources described France as 'England's sword' which must 'be broken from England's hand.'")

Complete capitulation probably would mean surrender of the French fleet, second strongest in Europe, and counted upon by England in its blockade.

A statement given out by Havas, French news agency, today said Pétain's task was one of the heaviest ever to fall on the shoulders of a French Premier.

In Greatest Peril

The nation was in the greatest peril of its life from the unrelenting advance of 150 German divisions, between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 men.

Save for a few gunners, held to cover the retirement, the French had been repelled in dispatches from Basel, Switzerland, as having abandoned the entire half-billion dollar Maginot Line, once the symbol of their security from invasion from the east.

Last night's high command communiqué had reported renewed Nazi attacks along the whole battlefront from the sea to the border area, but said the battle-swept French troops attacked themselves to local counter-attacks in the region west of Paris, near Laigle and La Ferte Vidame.

There the German advance was reported checked. But southeast of Paris, the French acknowledged, the Nazis forged ahead, crossing the Seine river in the neighborhood of Melun and Fontainebleau, and pushing advance guard elements beyond Auxerre, deep in central France, in the direction of Clamancy and Avallon.

South of the plateau of Langres, armored and motorized German columns reached the region north of Dijon and the Saône above Gray. Dijon is 150 miles south-east of Paris and 40 miles airline from the Swiss border; Auxerre is 100 miles from Paris in a more southerly direction.

The high command also disclosed French movements "in accordance with orders" (apparently a retreat) in Alsace and Lorraine.

Attack Is Checked

A direct attack on the Saar front was reported checked. At Neuf-Brisach, however, the Nazis were admitted to have established a bridgehead with the object of encircling the Maginot Line.

Announcement of the new cabinet, after a series of conferences which lasted far into the night, came in the midst of an air raid alarm. No bombs were known to have fallen.

The new ministry was formed after discussion of President Roosevelt's offer of material aid from the United States and of an apparently urgent message from Britain's Prime Minister Churchill.

The old cabinet had met briefly first yesterday morning and an announcement made that the United States government "declares itself resolved to develop assistance to the full extent of its resources to the exclusion, for the moment, if it is understood, of any declaration of war against Germany."

It was necessary for the cabinet, the announcement added, to discuss further "in the light of information in its possession on the whole diplomatic and military situation, to what extent this re-

Rally Last Week By Stock Market

The stock market rallied last week, with substantial gains shown for four out of the six trading days. Whether the rally was of a "technical" nature, or whether it represented a belief that with continued reverses of the Allies discontinued, the huge demands upon the nation's industry to meet contemplated national defense plans means continued activity for some time to come and a somewhat sustained upturn, the fact is that measured by the Dow-Jones averages security prices moved ahead. Closing Saturday with a gain of 1.09 points, to 123.36, industrials showed a net advance for the week, as compared with closing prices on June 8, of eight points. Ralls gained .11 Saturday and 1.18 for the week, closing at 24.97. Utilities made an advance of .44 in the last session and had a net gain of 1.61 for the week, to 20.18.

Allied purchases of war material have been on the increase of late. What effect the removal of France as an active factor in such purchases would make depends upon whether or not Great Britain stands by her determination to continue the conflict. In event she does Canada could be expected to greatly increase her efforts and presumably demands upon the resources of this country would continue.

Volume on the Stock Exchange for the week was about five and a half million shares, not especially heavy, with 559,170 shares dealt in Saturday. Steels were active at the close of the week, with U. S. Steel gaining a point, Republic & Bethlehem 2 1/2.

Commodity markets were irregular Saturday and the index showed a slight loss. Cotton was the most active and gained 11 to 16 points in the two hours trading. Wheat showed small gains. Hides and copper advanced.

Italian issues were features of the bond market Saturday and rallied two to ten points.

First Step Toward War

Some dispatches to Stockholm interpreted the Russian move as the first step toward participation in the European war.

(The Stockholm newspaper Allehanda reported Berlin opinion as "rather reserved" and said the Soviet action was not "exactly welcomed." Another Berlin dispatch, however, said it was felt that "Soviet intentions were known to the Germans in advance.")

(Some Allied observers in London were hopefully seeing signs of Russian action against the increasing threat of a Hitler-dominated Europe. But reserved judgment was the general attitude, and there was little press speculation.)

The Berlin radio in an English broadcast heard in London, however, said "some circles abroad are making idle speculations with regard to Soviet Russia's intentions. All rumors in this connection are entirely unfounded and are but a demonstration of these circles' own hysterical state of mind...")

Tass reported that "Ex-President" Antanas Smetona of Lithuania and several other Lithuanian officials had crossed the border into Germany and promptly had been interned by German officials.

(Aftonbladet's correspondent in Kaunas reported to Stockholm that Lithuania had become "a giant Russian military camp" since Saturday. It was estimated "at least a half million men" were being sent into the country which borders East Prussia.)

In setting forth the reasons for Russia's demands upon her Baltic neighbors, Tass quoted the government representations that an existing military alliance among Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia "directed against the U.S.S.R. is not only not permissible and unbearable but profoundly dangerous and menacing to the security of the frontiers of the U.S.S.R."

VITAL TO NATIONAL DEFENSE

This nation must embark upon the greatest defense program in its history.

All the countries of the world face unpredictable futures, and of the major nations we seem to be the most poorly prepared to meet possible invasion. Both the political parties have made an expanded national defense part of their objectives, and the public is in overwhelming agreement.

Any national defense program which is to be at all adequate is going to cost money—incalculable sums of money. And, in the present tangled state of our tax and fiscal structure, raising that money will demand intelligent thought and planning. It cannot be raised by heavy increases in taxation without driving us into a new and severe economic depression. It must be raised, in part at least, by governmental economy and applying the savings to the national defense. On this point the New York Times has said editorially:

"We must drastically cut down the scandalously over-generous subsidies, and duplications, that we have been scattering in all directions....If in addition, we revise or repeal some of the well-intentioned legislation and bureaucratic rules that stand in the way of industrial expansion and private employment, we can still further reduce unemployment and relief expenditures at the same time as we increase the yield from existing taxes....We must recast our thinking, in fact, our whole economy....As a nation we will leave more for defense as we spend less in other directions." In other words, would you rather have $200,000,000 for someone's pet "political" project or for a "defense" project such as 2,000 bombers or 8,000 pursuit planes?

It should be remembered that an orderly fiscal policy is in itself a vital defense factor. Putting our financial house in order is certainly an essential part of any workable national defense program.

INDIA IS LOYAL

The British picture is dark these days, but a ray of light comes from India. That vast and populous realm has been demanding independence. But Mahatma Gandhi, spiritual ruler and political leader of 300,000,000 Hindus, recently announced that he would not take advantage of Britain's plight and would wait for redress of grievances until the war was over.

Now the pro-British swing goes farther. There is soon to be a meeting of the All-Indian Nationalist Congress and the Moslem League to reconsider their attitude toward Britain. Italy's entry into the war, which has inspired some other fence-sitting nations to join in the effort to crush Britain, seems to make the supposedly hostile people of India more loyal. They are now arresting the Italians in S'inda and other cities. Dictators wouldn't understand it.

This action is very complimentary to Britain. The Hindus and Moslems obviously prefer the comparatively mild British yoke to such rule as they might expect from the Nazis or Fascists.

RAW MEAT DIET

A speaker at the recent meeting of the American Medical Association maintained that the American people are getting less vigorous, and the men more feminine and the women more masculine, because we don't eat raw meat.

It starts us wondering how our grandparents and great grandparents liked their meat. We don't seem to remember any record or traditions that they preferred it raw. But maybe that's only because we don't go far enough back.

Anyway, it's to be hoped that people now won't start eating their pork raw. For if they do, as the doctors have always told us, they may find themselves riddled by a very unpleasant parasite.

Maybe raw beef would be all right, and we may be destined for a spell of raw beef sandwiches. It might be appetizing if you got enough salt and pepper and onion and one thing and another mixed with it.

We might even learn to gulp raw eggs, too, if that's necessary to restore our waning vigor.

But what's the matter with drugstore vitamins? We've been getting the idea lately that they will supply all dietary deficiencies, if you get the proper letters.

WHISTLING TROUBLE

Sympathy from many people goes out to Ned Sparks, film and radio comedian, for his special type of income tax trouble. In filing his tax returns, Ned deducted $3,000 as "business expense", the same being what it had cost him for expensive dentures to prevent "whistling and hissing through his teeth" into the microphone.

It seems just too bad that he can't get away with it. If the claim were allowed, it would make things easier for a lot of other involuntary whistlers and hissers, and give the dentists a lot of profitable work. And then, in the end, Uncle Sam might get his cut of the proceeds out of the dentists' incomes, if they made conscientious returns, which they doubtless would, and everybody would be happy. But rules are rules, and probably the Treasury Department, while aiming to be just isn't especially interested in making people happy.

Nazism and Fascism and Bolshevism

might be the salvation of the world, but when does the killing stop and give people a chance to find out?

Europe is a witch's brew of hate, which we can do without in America.

PERNICIOUS ANAEMIA

When Drs. Minot and Murphy discovered that eating calf's liver daily would prevent death from pernicious anaemia, the demand for calf's liver was so great that provision merchants were unable to supply the demand. The fact that cow's and pig's liver were effective in building up red cells has brought down the cost of calf's liver to a more reasonable price.

However, while it is comforting to the patient to know that liver will keep him alive, he may grow tired of liver as it means eating about a half pound of liver six days a week, or a third of a pound a day. Accordingly, many hospitals and physicians have devised various ways of making liver attractive to the taste.

As there are many who cannot eat liver and others who dislike it but can eat it, a liver extract is now available which undergoes government inspection. For those who cannot eat liver, taking the liver extract five times a week by mouth is not so difficult.

Moreover, it is possible for these anaemic patients to get liver extract by injections into the muscles, taken one each week or even one every two weeks. In fact, Dr. Raphael Isaacs, Ann Arbor, Michigan, in the Journal of the Indiana State Medical Association, states that a few patients have been able to go for three- or four-week intervals on the intramuscular treatment (injections of the extract into the muscles).

For those who cannot, or do not wish to, visit the physician for the intramuscular injections, injecting the liver extract daily into the veins directly once a month has been found effective. In about 10 per cent of cases the injection into the veins gives too severe a reaction.

Dr. Isaacs points out that other preparations than liver are available for sufferers with pernicious anaemia consisting of liver and stomach combinations, liver and vitamin mixtures, and yeast.

In severe cases or where the number of red blood cells is very low, transfusions of rich blood are still given.

It will be gratifying to pernicious anaemia patients and their families to know that while there may be 57 different ways of preparing liver for the table, these other methods—liver extract, liver and stomach mixtures, liver and vitamin mixtures and yeast—can all be taken by mouth; also that liver extract need be injected but once a week into the muscles and once a month into the veins to keep the number and quality of the red blood cells up to normal.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most colorful personalities in the field of education in Kingston during the early years of the 1900's was the late S. R. Shear, superintendent of Kingston's schools. He was widely known not only in Kingston but throughout the Hudson river valley as an educator.

It is also interesting to note that in the past forty years this city's schools have been served by four superintendents. Following the resignation of Superintendent Shear to accept the position as head of the Poughkeepsie education system, Professor Myron J. Michael, principal of old Kingston Academy, was selected for the post of superintendent, which he held until his death.

Superintendent Michael proved one of the most able men to head the city's education system, and under his administration both as principal of the old academy that in later years was torn down, and as superintendent of schools, many of the leading citizens of Kingston came in close contact with him.

In so high esteem was Superintendent Michael held that when the education board was seeking a name for the new school on Andrew street, the name of Superintendent Michael was the one that received the most votes, and the new school was officially named the Myron J. Michael School as a tribute to the memory of a beloved educator of this city.

And speaking of Superintendent Michael recalls the many activities of his wife, Mrs. Michael, for years was an active member of the Board of Health during the Canfield administration and she always took an active interest in the health conditions existing in the city.

It was while she was serving as chairman of the sanitary committee of the board that she was sworn in as a special officer with the power to make arrests. Her being appointed a special policeman the first woman to hold such a position grew out of trouble the board was having with the owner of pigs on the outskirts of the city.

This pig owner resided on the city line and when the sanitary committee would call at his place to investigate complaints it would be to find that the pigs were residing outside the city. The pig pen was so constructed that the pigs could be kept either just inside the city line or just over the line as occasion demanded.

Another colorful personality on the health board in those years was the late Charles L. McBride, widely known central Broadway druggist. Mr. McBride for years served as a member of the health board, and both he and Mrs. Michael were two of the most efficient board members to ever serve the city.

Newspaper men who covered the health board meetings during the Canfield administration recall that the members of the health board were never afraid to voice an opinion on any health subject and they had no objection to being quoted in the newspaper reports as long as they were quoted correctly.

In those days health board meetings were lively events and a reporter was always sure of obtaining a good story when he attended the monthly sessions.

But to get back to the subject of school superintendents of Kingston. Following the death of Dr. Michael the education board selected Bart C. Van Ingen for the position, which he filled most capably until he resigned some time ago, and was succeeded by the present superintendent, Arthur J. Laidlaw, whose work as head of the school system is meeting with success.

Washington Groups Doing Everything in Apparent Attempt to Discredit Allies; 'War Debts' Committee Active

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 17.—Realism has not yet gone the whole distance in making official Washington fully understand the implication of what has been happening abroad these last few weeks. There are still groups here which are unsympathetic to the allies and doing everything apparently to discredit them.

One such organization, which boasts on its stationery the names of a few members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, openly attacks Britain and France in a news release issued today on the subject of war debts of the last European war, but significantly refrains from attacking Germany for having failed to pay her war debts either to the United States or the allies.

It may not be generally realized, but Germany repudiated her debt to the United States growing out of costs assessed against her by a treaty she signed. The debt agreements which were defaulted by England and France were no more international agreements than were those of the German government.

But it will seem odd to many Americans that a group formally proclaimed as a "make Europe pay her war debts committee" should be operating at this time, issuing statements and carrying on an attack against the allies. There were times when the subject of war debts was before the American people for consideration, but it would hardly seem to be a reflection of the way the American people feel today for a committee drawing on members of the House and Senate to be harassing the allies before the court of American opinion in the midst of a battle abroad for the life of democracy itself.

When France and Britain are fighting with their backs to the wall, when hundreds of thousands of lives have been lost and sacrifices far beyond any possibility of material compensation are being made, why should anyone who has been elected to the office of Senator or Representative put the United States in the role of shylock demanding his pound of flesh?

There is only one charitable explanation. The professional organizers of such groups may be using the names of members of Congress without the latter being alert to the uses made thereof.

The danger in such organizations is not the harm they themselves do, because American opinion today is preponderantly sympathetic with the Allies and certainly not with Hitler or Hitlerism, but that antagonisms are aroused which bring forth extreme measures. In England and France, Fascist or Communist sympathizers in the Parliaments have been imprisoned or removed from office. In each case public opinion would permit no break inside the ranks. Democracy allows freedom of speech and expression except when war is on. Even in America in the last war, extreme measures were taken which were regretted afterwards, but the provocation to such measures was to be found in the arrogant disregard of national policy by hyphenated Americans and native born Americans who had sympathies with the enemies of the United States.

All moves being made today to harass England and France and to make American public opinion unfriendly to the Allies are exactly what the Nazis want America to do. What is puzzling is that conscientious Americans who have been elected to Congress would not see they are being used as pawns in a propaganda levelled at the Allies.

British Major in 1893 Predicted Today's Modern Aerial Warfare

Washington—In the days of glorifying the major and minor prophesies of modern warfare, let me bow low to Rep. Carl Hinshaw of Pasadena, Calif., for digging up Maj. J. D. Fullerton, of the British Royal Engineers.

On file at the war department is a complete record of a speech Major Fullerton made at the International Congress of Engineers in August, 1893. That, mind you, was ten years before the Wright boys took their first flying machine off the sands of Kitty Hawk. Only the ritziest of the ritz had electric lights. Gasoline buggies were practically unknown and the greatest pedestrian menace was the bicycle.

Listen! Major Fullerton speaking: "To sum up: First, it seems quite probable that in the near future, aerial warfare will have to be counted upon."

"Second, this will, practically speaking, revolutionize the art of war."

"Third, owing to the high rate of speed which airplanes will attain, it will be necessary for all ready for war at very short notice."

"Fourth, the nations most affected by the introduction of aerial warfare will be those who depend for their defense upon navies."

"Fifth, as the aerial ships will be, comparatively speaking, inexpensive, the small nations will be able to equip themselves with them."

"Sixth, owing to the possibility of war at very short notice, a larger proportion of the nation will have to be kept under arms."

"Seventh, warfare by sea and land will only be possible when a nation has command of the air."

If that's not hitting the fuselage on the nose, I never heard of it.

Offers Sub-Capital

Carl Brown, editor of the Atchison Globe, must be first with the news out of Atchison because he was first to offer his city as a rabbit hole for the national capital.

Observing that dispatches indicate Washington is pretty jittery, Mr. Brown wrote Congressman W. P. Lambertson:

"My only conclusion is that Washington people see visions of invasion."

"The good old town of Atchison, Kans., wishing to alleviate the sufferings of Washington people, invites and urges that a subsidiary national capital be created in Atchison, which is in the heart of America."

"Atchison has four railroads, is on the Missouri river, which now is ready for steamboat and barge traffic, and has beautiful sites for government buildings."

"Atchison submits this invitation and urges it in all seriousness. Even when the world is at peace there should be a subsidiary national capital in the heart of America."

If the applause that swept the House when Mr. Brown's letter was read is a criterion, the representatives think that's a swell idea. Who's next?

War Talk Discouraged

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Jan's new life is gay and fairly profitable, but finally the spell wears off and she decides to go home. She finds that Rose and Johnny have eloped and that Derek has sold her kitchen sketches for $1,000.

Chapter 31

Hope For Lance

JAN kept the check for two days, just to look at, before putting it in the bank. "It makes me feel so rich and expensive and arrived," she explained to Norma, laughing, serious, too.

The check brought about new enthusiasm for work, new faith in herself. A few days after she arrived home she visited a pet shop in Santa Monica and wheeled the proprietor into renting her three fluffy, orange Persian kittens for a short while. She put them in a wicker basket and carried them up on the roof where she spent the afternoon sketching their antics. She found, employing her talent for something besides portraits, that her facility and technique had improved enormously during her period of trial on Olivera Street. A confidence and sureness had come to her slender fingers.

By the end of the week the sketches were finished and signed and sent off by mail to New York City and Neptune was again feline ruler of the house.

With all of her heart Jan wished to write and thank Derek for helping her, but she had no idea where a letter could find him. It hurt to know he had not cared enough to write her, to tell her what he was doing, where he was even though she had told herself all along that he would leave some day, and it would be the end.

The ocean, at high tide, had brought her strange salvage which she had kept for a little time—a pitifully little time.

And now, excitement dying down, work for the moment at a standstill, she felt her own high tide of emotion ebbing. After the summer's gay and carefree experiences, Sea Tide, after blissful rest, seemed dull and unexciting. Before Derek had come she had been content with her house and her painting and her boat, but now they weren't enough. Everything was staid and empty and routine. Lance was now accustomed to Norma's care, so Jan let it stand that way.

Angus wrote, beseeching her to come back to the only true artistic existence and she found herself laughing, knowing that, at least for her, it was not any matter of means the true existence. "I guess I'm not a real Bohemian," she thought, "whatever that is."

She dropped Angus a note assuring him, implicitly, that she was far too old-fashioned to enjoy the sharing of her crust in an atmosphere of "mutual understanding." However, she had made one real friend in the city. Ruth Cronin did drive her little coupe down for a week-end and Frank brought in cold meats and ale and all of them made a gala event of it in the cool living room. On Sunday afternoon Jan persuaded her into the sailboat after Frank promised to keep an eye on them and come to the rescue if anything happened.

Dr. Murray

AS NORMA helped Jan prepare Sunday night supper, Ruth came into the kitchen and closed the door behind her.

"I know I'm poking my nose into your private affairs," she apologized with a wry grimace, "but I'm the sort of person who has to have her say, regardless."

"I want you to," Jan assured her warmly.

"It's about your brother, Lance. I've been talking with Frank about the nature of his injury," she said. "I heard of a case similar to his just a short time ago. The boy happens to be the son of our store manager, Mr. Sobol. He was in a bad automobile crack-up. They were determined to leave no stone unturned to help him and of course they have money. The mother took the boy to a famed surgeon in Edinburgh. A Doctor Frederick Murray. He operated on the knees and in a short time the young man was able to be about on crutches with every indication of final recovery."

"But Edinburgh?" Jan wailed. "We haven't enough money, Ruth."

"I know, that's why I'm telling you this. Doctor Murray is now visiting in New York doing a few special surgeries, believe, I thought, if you could manage to take Lance to New York. I'd get Mr. Sobol to use his influence in helping you see Doctor Murray."

"We must do it, Jan," Norma cried, her eyes brilliant with sudden, shining hope. "Lance must have this chance. He must!"

Jan, catching her excitement, tried to be reasonable and matter-of-fact. "The aircraft people here had the best specialists in the country look at Lance two years ago, Norma. You know that; Ruth doesn't. They said not only were the knee caps completely shattered, but the tendons and ligaments were torn and pulled beyond mending."

"Still—" Norma insisted.

"What I fear most of all," Jan went on doggedly, "is arousing Lance's hopes for no reason. He's resigned himself to great extent and it would be pretty terrible if he had to go all through that particular agony again. I'm almost afraid to chance it. Norma. Besides, I have only a little over a thousand dollars and no definite assurance my latest sketches will sell and this Doctor Murray will probably ask a fabulous sum if he should decide to operate."

Ruth looked from one girl to the other and said nothing. Norma remained silent a moment, then said quietly, "I think, Jan, we should put the whole case before Lance and let him decide. As to money, we'll use what I have in addition to yours. I've saved a little over two thousand and I want Lance to have it. He mustn't know, of course. No matter what it means, he must have this chance." She broke off, her hands clasping and unclasping, and Jan claved her pathetic thought. She'd been going to say, "No matter what it means to me," thinking that Lance, whole again, might seek the pleasures he had had to forego so long and that those pleasures might include gay, lovely women who, attracted by the glamour of his vocation, would seek him out.

Guilty Secret

"NORMA, do you remember the picture 'Test Pilot'?" Do you realize if Lance can ever pilot a plane again he'll probably be a test pilot?"

"Yes, Jan. But it's life to him." "And maybe death?" Jan reminded soberly.

Norma's lips set into a firm line. "He should have his chance."

"Then it is settled," Jan smiled. "Let's tell him after supper."

During the meal, Lance, observing Norma's perturbed face and Jan's obvious nervousness, demanded: "What's got into you women, anyhow? You both look as if you were hiding a guilty secret. Did you break the company dishes or burn the potatoes? Frank, are you in on this? Your sister looks worried enough."

"Don't know a thing," Frank shrugged. "No telling what sort of plot these three gals have hatched up."

Jan said, "You may as well tell him, Norma. For a moment, before the other girl put her words in speaking order, she looked long into her brother's somber, beautiful face, not so bleak as it once had been, yet still reflecting the hopelessness, the sense of futility, which even his rare smile never quite erased. Her reluctance to concur with Norma's plan was predicated on the thought that Lance, his hopes raised once more, would be plunged only deeper into melancholy if he were disappointed."

But it appeared she was wrong. Apprised of their scheme, Lance said soberly: "I'd like to have him look me over, of course, I don't need to go into that, you all know too well how I feel. Nevertheless, I'm not hoisting the flag of hope just yet. I promise you I won't go to pieces if he agrees with the others that mine is a hopeless case."

By the time Ruth left for town it was decided that Jan would go in to meet the next day for a supervised shopping tour. Ruth, experienced as a buyer of women's wear, would select a small but becoming fall wardrobe for Jan.

"Then you can go in the day following," Norma, Jan said, taking it for granted Norma would accompany them to New York.

Rose and Johnny dropped in during last-minute preparations, finding Jan "up to her ears in packing," as she phrased it, with little time to wonder if her ex-roomers were happy. Yet she was unduly disturbed when Johnny came upon her alone while she draped sheets over cabinets and furniture in the living room, and said without preamble: "I'll bet you were plenty surprised about me marrying Rose, weren't you?"

"Yes," she admitted, "I was. Still, she's the type of girl you always admired so, Johnny."

"Sure," he agreed, fussing with the coat button of his white sack suit; "but it was you I really wanted all along, only you'd never listen to me or try to fix yourself up or anything."

"It was never me," she protested, smiling. "It was the idea of creating a butterfly out of a moth that appealed to you. If you'd really cared about me, Johnny, you'd have liked me the way I was—or maybe I'm wrong, or maybe I read too much romantic fiction." She straightened up a moment to take a kink out of her back and pushed her hair back from her tired face.

Big Ole—I ban working for Chris Yohnson.

Farmer—Why, old Chris Yohnson is a good farmer. What did you quit him for?
Big Ole—Well, I told you I bane working for Chris Yohnson two, three week, and one of his sheep die, and he say, "Ole, you skin that sheep." So I skin that sheep and we eat him; then in two, week a calf die and Chris say: "Ole, you skin that calf." And I skin that calf and we have meat for a long time. And then last night—his mother-in-law die. And I quit.

U. S. to Prepare a Haven

In Nevada for Wild Life

A 40,000-acre swamp and meadow in eastern Nevada will be prepared for occupancy by migrating birds and waterfowl. Capt. Keith K. Tatom of the Fort Douglas CCC district headquarters here has announced.

The area, located in Ruby valley, Nevada, will be the third largest migratory bird sanctuary in the United States.

A section of land about 16 miles long and two miles wide has been acquired by the federal government. The area is fed by many natural springs that will provide natural waterways and islands. It will make "ideal swampland" for birds, Tatom said.

The job of engineers is to convert a vast waste land into an even more worthless wasteland. Much of the area will be flooded, and bushes and other herbage planted to create the best possible conditions for migrating birds.

The valley is already a natural resting place and nesting ground for ducks, geese, pelicans and almost every other variety of migratory bird found in this section of the country. By scientific methods they hope to change it into a place more natural than even nature could devise.

Two hundred CCC boys have been put to work clearing the land of worthless vegetation, cutting canals and building islands for the birds to alight on.

The refuge will be surpassed in size only by the Bear River refuge in Utah and the Malheur refuge in central Oregon.

Bombs Endanger U. S. Gunboat

Chungking, June 17 (AP)—Bombs dumped from raiding Japanese planes endangered the United States gunboat Tutuila yesterday, one projectile falling so close that the crew was ordered to take cover.

(The Tutuila, a 370-ton craft built in 1927, carries a complement of 58 officers and men). Lieutenant Robert Germany, commander of the gunboat, said bomb fragments pelted the boat. Smoke billowing over the river from shore fires almost obscured the ship from view.

Three waves of planes roared over the capital in a punishing resumption of air sorties after a three-day respite. While an estimated 500 bombs were dropped, 16 Chinese pursuit ships attacked the raiders and a high air force official said, shot down five of them.

After the last bomber had wheeled away toward the Hankow base, Chinese counted these results:
About 100 casualties.
10,000 homeless from fires whipping through wooden structures in the poorer districts along the river front.
500 public buildings and residences destroyed.

French Catholic Mission's primary school demolished and nearby Bible school buildings shattered.

A direct hit on the Chungking Hostel, where 20 foreigners lived. There were no casualties as most of the residents were on a Sunday outing on the southbank when the alarm sounded. The Hostel housed the joint office of the Chinese-American Cultural Institute and the New York Times.

Grandfather's Farm Calls Woman Teacher

After a teaching career which progressed from the little red schoolhouse to the school of speech, Syracuse university, Mrs. Grace S. Bull of Syracuse has virtually returned to her birthplace on a historic and scenic farm in the Madison county hills. She owns the farm her grandfather operated almost a century ago, she died nearly all the morning on the farm during the 1939 season and she saw her herd of Holsteins develop in two years to the highest rating in the county's history.

But beyond that, she finds that in spite of a long period of urban existence, the call of the soil is still strong and clear, the same call her grandfather answered back in 1852, writes Joseph H. Adams in the Syracuse Post-Standard. At every opportunity she rides eastward from Syracuse through Fayetteville, through Chittenango, past the old stone cheese factory and then deeper and deeper down a rustic winding road to a spot she has always loved through the years.

Over the gravel road which enters the farm on the fringe of sturdy trees a pass, to stop finally near one of a group of red barns. And there she is met by a flurry of joy and animation as her collie, Trixie, leaps forward to greet her with such eagerness that the animal comes incredibly close to human speech.

And Mrs. Bull, who was born in the grand old homestead, is just as eager to be back where she spent a happy childhood and where she intends one day to take up her residence again.

Women In Politics DEMOCRATS

No longer do politicians merely tolerate their women co-workers. Instead, they give them big offices, big staffs and their blessings as the ladies set out to corral the vote. Here are four women leaders in the Democratic party who will be heard from during the presidential campaign.

Mary W. (Molly) Dewson: On the books as first big-time feminist political boss. Went down with the Al Smith forces in '28, but came back with a plea to Democrats to organize women. Became big factor in both '32 and '36 campaigns. Breezy, big plain-dressed, well-liked, Wellesley graduate. Mary W. Dewson Social service worker, refugee worker in France, suffrage worker, labor

May Thompson Evans: Feminine, gay, with a soft southern drawl. Left Columbia to teach English. But tasted politics working with Harriet Elliott, new woman member of defense commission. Then she plunged into Young Democrats movement, shortly was elected North Carolina president of the Young Dems. Headed state employment service. Found jobs for thousands, then came to Washington to be assistant director of Democratic women's division. Wife of a lawyer.

Dr. White Urges Walking and Cycling

Boston, June 17 (AP)—Dr. Paul D. White, internationally known heart specialist, urged Americans today to turn from "excessive" use of motor cars to "walking and cycling" so the automotive industry could devote itself largely to national defense and "aid for those who are defending civilization for us."

"Factories, workers and raw materials," he said in an interview, "could be devoted more completely to the needs of the day which must include the making of airplanes, guns, and ships as well as of a good many motor cars, but not a car simply for the pleasure of every few persons."

Such a change, declared the Boston doctor who is vice president of the American Heart Association, and a devotee of "country" cycling himself, would also be an aid to the nation's health because "I am convinced from my own medical practice that one of the great errors of the day is the failure to take regular exercise."

Tree Can't Hide Age
A woman's age may be her secret, but any good dendochronologist can date a tree, says an article in the Field Museum News.

Dendochronology, or tree ring chronology, has been used by Dr. Paul S. Martin, chief curator of anthropology at the museum, during archeological expeditions in Colorado and New Mexico.

Basis of the science is the fact that trees add a ring for each year of growth. Rings vary according to the moisture supplied to the tree by rain and snow. Wet years produce broad rings; dry years, narrow rings.

By careful study of hundreds of trees a graph of weather conditions for more than 1,200 years has been worked out. When log beams are found in ancient ruins, comparison of the rings with the mastergraph will show what year the beam was cut.

Philly Plans A Grand Old Party

Philadelphia's going Republican, June 24, with 125,000 or more in town for the national convention. Minnesota's Gov. Stassen will sound the keynote. Massachusetts' Rep. Martin probably will be chairman. And there'll be plenty of people, politics and fun, like this—

Rep. Martin G. O. P. believes in signs: this one's on Philadelphia Convention Hall.

Women In Politics REPUBLICANS

Women's place in politics has become firmly established in recent years. They serve on national party committees, are state vice-chairmen, and organize political federations. Good examples are these Republican party leaders who have important work cut out for them in the fall presidential campaign.

Marion E. Martin: Erect, serious-minded, reserved director of the Republican women's division. Hails from Bangor, Me. Studied in private schools, the University of Maine and the Yale law school. Did two terms each in the Maine house and senate. Named Maine's national committee-woman in '36 and then was bid in at a good salary, by the Republican national committee to round up women's votes. Member of numerous women's organizations. Wears the Phi Beta Kappa key for scholarship.

Mrs. Worthington Scranton: Beautifully dressed social leader from Scranton, Pa. Republicans will go social in big way at their convention under her expert direction. Worked with Republican women's clubs since 1920. It's her 12th year as Pennsylvania national committee-woman. Has served as Republican vice-chairman for Pennsylvania. Graduate of exclusive schools.

Mrs. Robert Taft: New feminine fire-cracker on the political horizon. Wants her husband to be President. Campaigned Ohio to send him to the Senate. Plump brunette with plenty of energy and a quick tongue. Studied with private tutors and at exclusive schools. Daughter of a President Taft appointee. Runs a home on Washington's gold coast, another home on estate outside Cincinnati.

Important Kitchen Sink
The sink has been called the most important single piece of equipment in the kitchen. As both food preparation and the cleaning away processes involve the use of the sink, more than half of the housewife's cooking time in the kitchen is spent at the sink. Among the many types which may be chosen is an acid-resisting, cast-iron, enameled sink, with chromium plated swinging spout and a disappearing spray hose, obtainable in single or double compartment styles, with one or two drainboards. A 60-inch cabinet sink has two drainboards and one basin; the 42 and 52-inch models have one basin and one drainboard. All models are 36 inches high, which is the correct height for the average woman, and all are 25½ inches wide, which is the standard width of the steel base cabinets. The sink, since it is the most used fixture, should be half way between the refrigerator and the range.

Sulu Princess Gives Up Title to Many Islets

Colorful Philippine Moroland, where under the American flag live sultans, rajahs, princesses and imams, was brought closer to Manila when Dayang Dayang (princess) Hadji Pandang of Sulu signed documents renouncing long-standing land claims of the Sulu sultanate against the Philippine government.

Heiress to the late Sultan Jamalul Kiram II, the Dayang Dayang inherited the claims of the sultanate to various lands, including 700 islets in the Celebes sea as well as the people on them and the waters about them.

In renouncing the claims, the princess accepted an offer of the government, embodied in a law, to adjudicate to certain members of the Sulu royal house tracts of land of the public domain in the Sulu archipelago. Titles to these pieces of land accordingly will be issued by the commonwealth.

In the renunciations documents, however, the Dayang Dayang reserved her claims to exclusive ownership of 14 islets between Sulu archipelago and Borneo. Inhabited by Moros (Filipino Mohammedans), these 14 islets actually are under the jurisdiction of British North Borneo, to which the Dayang Dayang has presented claims of ownership.

According to the princess, she inherited the islets from her royal ancestors and she is the only person who could rightfully govern them. She says the inhabitants of the islets recognize her as their own sovereign.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PICTURE NEWS

THE SPIRIT OF 50 STEPS HIGH—William M. Jeffers (left), president of the Union Pacific railroad, stepped high and handsome to celebrate his 50th birthday, but not to be outdone was M. W. Clement (right), president of the Pennsylvania railroad. They teamed with comely drum major Yvonne Stone (center) to lead the parade staged by union leaders and business men at Omaha, Neb., to help Jeffers celebrate the half-century mark.

FIRE WHEN READY—Balancing spool precariously on his knee and taking careful aim, Private Lonnie B. Flowers of the Eighth Engineers corps at Fort McIntosh, Texas, meets a real emergency during army war maneuvers in the South. At the present rate he'll soon have the enemy hemmed in on all sides.

BLITZKRIEG IN BROOKLYN—$1.10 is not peanuts, so cop or no cop these Brooklyn youngsters scale a wall at Ebbett's field for a glimpse of their Darling Dodgers in deadly battle locked with the hated Giants. They made it, too.

REPORTER—Rescued in historic battle of Flanders, Count Rene de Chambrun (above) was reported en route to Washington for duty as French embassy's assistant military attache and a first-hand report to President Roosevelt on the epoch.

ENVOY—To report latest developments in Russia, Laurence A. Steinhardt (above), United States ambassador to the Soviet Union, returned to Washington for conversations with the President and Secretary of State Hull.

PREPARED—With the threat of Italian intervention increasing tension in southeastern Europe, Premier Refik Saydam (above) assured his people by radio that the Turkish army was "ready to repel any aggression from any side."

SEA TO AIR—Relinquishing his admiralty position, the Duke of Kent (above), younger brother of the King, shifted to a post in Britain's hard fighting Royal Air Force.

DECKED OUT—In gob's garb, brass buttoned and shirt-tail ready to flap in the breeze, blonde Lee Childs of Detroit heads a speedy motor cruiser for cooling spin on one of the Great Lakes. Central Marine Chamber of Commerce named her "Lady of the Lakes," hopes excess temperatures thus generated will boost the ranks of fresh water sailors.

THE WINNAH!—Little Sally Fisher, 5, was $22 richer when she coaxed her pet, "Blockhead," across the finish line to win the "Freakness" against 10 other speedsters in the Johns Hopkins Hospital Turtle Derby at Baltimore, Md.

U. S. Mobilizes Her Men And Machines For Defense

THEY ALSO SERVE—Skilled hands like those of this typical New England workman, drilling an airplane cylinder in the Pratt and Whitney engine plant at Hartford, Conn., are so important to national defense that part of the new $4,000,000,000 security program contemplates training the unemployed for skilled work on big guns and airplanes.

SLEEPING BEAUTY—This big 16-inch coast defense gun at Fort Tilden, N. Y., hadn't been fired in five years until America suddenly became defense-conscious. It shoots half-ton shell nearly 17 miles. The new defense program earmarks $200,000,000 for arms plant expansion, $200,000,000 for munitions tools, $30,000,000 for manufacture of new anti-aircraft gun.

PILOTS IN THE RAW—Task of training pilots for the 50,000 planes President Roosevelt wants is responsibility of Civil Aeronautics Authority, and Capt. L. E. Aretz (left) is shown schooling fledglings in the Purdue university-CAA flying class at LaFayette, Ind. Apt pupils get a crack at Army air schools after the preliminary civilian training courses.

IN THE ARMY NOW—To bring its strength up to authorized 280,000 men, the Army recruits with new vigor. These rookies are learning to use gas masks, a first lesson after arriving at Fort Hoyle, Md., where they were assigned to Sixth Field Artillery. When new defense program was launched, Army had about 227,000 men, with another 400,000 in National Guard units.

Short Circuit Causes Car Fire

A 1929 limousine belonging to Rocky Cansas, proprietor of the Ferry Lunch at Highland, was burned badly in front and about the engine about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The car caught fire from a short circuit in the ignition while it stood parked off the shoulder of the road near the Golden Rule Inn. Two truckmen who happened along put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher after attempts had been made to extinguish it with road dust. Cansas had loaned the car to two men to go to Kingston for ice cream, and they were sitting in the parked car when the fire broke out.

Religious Sect May Take Court Action in Illinois

St. Louis, June 17. (AP) — A group of Jehovah's witnesses, back from an expedition to a Southern Illinois coal town which resulted in an attack by residents, nursed injuries today and considered possible court action against city officials.

The religious sect members were beaten and their automobiles wrecked by Litchfield citizens in a series of disturbances when they attempted a Sunday distribution of pamphlets. Sheriff Leo Gilliland said the literature contained discussions of the sect's principles prohibiting its members from saluting the American flag on the grounds the practice is idolatry.

Fights occurred as residents sought out the sect members and demanded that they salute the flag.

The members—39 women and 26 men—were taken to the small city jail by officers and friendly citizens. There a mob grabbed 15 men and beat them outside the jail. Only fists were used and no one was injured seriously. The women members were not molested.

Fifteen cars were driven to a lot, where they were overturned and battered. Three others were reported driven into an old reservoir. A pile of literature was burned at a downtown corner.

An Illinois state highway patrol riot squad sped to the town from Springfield, 45 miles away, and the disturbances subsided. State officers later transferred the members to Hillsboro and released them. They returned to St. Louis in chartered buses.

"We did everything we could to save them," said Chief of Police George Taylor of Litchfield, "but we just couldn't handle the people with our small force."

One leader of the sect said he believed suit could be filed against the city on the grounds inadequate protection had been provided.

Children's Day Services Held at Local Church

The annual Children's Day services of the Sunday school of the Roundout Presbyterian Church were held Sunday morning in the church, when a most interesting program was given by pupils of the school, who had been trained by Mrs. Everett V. K. Schutt.

The church had been artistically decorated for the services which were in charge of Irving W. Scott, superintendent of the Sunday school.

Recitations were given by Audrey Peck, Bernice Lowe, Donald Stokes, Henry Peyer, Vera Leonard, Norma Manos, Leonard Morris, Mildred Palmer, Alberta Stokes, Shirley Leonard, Lois Wolff and Ward Ingalsbee.

A recitation, "The Master is Coming" was given by Anna A. Van Deusen, and piano selections by Norma Manos and Margaret Ingalsbee.

Phyllis Wolff sang "God Cares for You" accompanied by girls from the beginners and primary departments of the school while Margaret Ingalsbee sang "I Am Glad." The song "Swing Dolly, Swing" was rendered by Alberta Stokes, Vera Leonard, Phyllis Wolff and Margaret Ingalsbee.

The Rev. D. Linton Doherty, pastor of the church, delivered the Children's Day sermon, and there was special music by the church choir and the school.

Two Children Bitten by Dogs

Two children were bitten by dogs in Kingston on Sunday according to reports made to police headquarters. The first report was that Joy Brooks, 10, of Yarmouth street, had been bitten in the hand by a dog owned by Eric Ellison of 15 Harding avenue. The wound was cauterized at the Kingston Hospital.

The other child reported bitten was Jackie Keating, a young boy of 199 Downs street. The dog was reported owned by James Andretta of 160 North Manor avenue.

Rev. Ammerman Ordination Rite Held at Hurley

The service for the ordination of the Rev. Paul E. Ammerman was held Friday evening, June 14 in the Hurley church. By appointment of the classis, Dr. Frank B. Seeley, presided at this meeting. The invocation was made by the Rev. Eugene C. Duryee, of Blue Mountain.

The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, of the First Reformed Church, Kingston. He presented Christ's words, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" as a call for Christian obedience.

The charges to the new pastor and to the two congregations were given, respectively, by the Revs. George Berens, of Fort Ewen and Chester C. Chilton, associate pastor of the Bergen church of Jersey City. Dr. Seeley read the form for ordination and heard the vows of both Mr. Ammerman and the Hurley and North Marletown congregations.

Ten ministers participated in the solemn service of the laying on of hands, in ordaining Mr. Ammerman. The organist and choir of the Hurley church furnished appropriate music. It was an interesting coincidence that just 25 years ago that evening and in the same church Dr. Seeley had presided when the Rev. Lawrence H. French was ordained and installed over the same churches. The public service came to a close with the pronouncement of the benediction by the Rev. Paul E. Ammerman.

Following this service there was a reception to the new pastor, given in the chapel of the church. The new pastorate opens with very happy prospect. Mr. Ammerman was chosen several weeks ago as the pastor-elect and had preached to both congregations several times before accepting their call. He was an honor student in the New Brunswick Seminary, and was given the Edward Lodewick prize at the last commencement, May 16 for being the best preacher in the Senior class of that seminary.

Thefts From Rosendale And Stone Ridge Homes

State Troopers Reilly and Wright are investigating complaints of thefts in houses at Stone Ridge and Rosendale, reported to them Sunday.

Mrs. Addie Conners of Stone Ridge reported that some time between Friday afternoon and Sunday morning, during most of which time she had been at home except for short calls on the neighborhood, about $50 in cash and jewelry had been stolen from her home. Mrs. Schneider of Rosendale stated that some money and jewelry had been taken from her home, the loss having been discovered Sunday morning.

Two Are Arrested Following Crash

Emily Hansen, 44, and Oscar Carlsen, 58, both of Samsonville, were arrested on the Plank road about 8:30 o'clock Sunday night, following an automobile accident on the Kennedy turn. The former was held in $100 bail for a hearing tonight before Justice Percy Bush of the town of Ulster on a charge of driving while intoxicated and Carlsen was held in $10 bail for a hearing on a charge of public intoxication. The accident was investigated by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg, McCullough and Winne, who said that the car knocked down several concrete highway posts before overturning and coming to a stop badly damaged.

Advertising is News too—

WHEN people are given helpful information about merchandise which they want and where it can be obtained, the result is good news for the readers and profitable advertising for the merchants. This newspaper offers the most effective method for business men to tell the news about their merchandise and service to the families in this community.

The extent of this effectiveness depends, of course, upon our circulation. Not necessarily how large, but where, how obtained and other facts that the advertiser has a right to know when he spends money for advertising. To give our advertisers this information we belong to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national, cooperative association of 2000 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. The Bureau was organized in 1914 and its purpose is to furnish advertisers with verified information about the circulation of the publisher members.

The Bureau has a staff of skilled auditors who make an annual audit of the circulation records of each publisher member. This audited information is then issued in A. B. C. reports which show how many copies of a newspaper are printed, where they go, how the circulation is secured and many other facts advertisers should know.

This newspaper therefore not only offers advertisers a good way to get their news to the right people in the community but also provides protection for advertising investments by giving audited circulation figures.

Kingston Daily Freeman

This newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations: On request we shall gladly furnish a copy of our latest A. B. C. report.

MERCY SHIP SAILS WITH MILLION-DOLLAR CARGO

Three members of the American Red Cross wave bon voyage to the mercy ship McKeesport as it sailed from New York carrying a million-dollar cargo of food, medical supplies and trucks for France. Crew members, protesting a last-minute change of destination, held up the sailing but agreed for a $40 bonus to take the ship to Bilbao, Spain, instead of Bordeaux, France, the original port.
